The Best of Times . . .

The times of our lives. The best of times, the worst of times. The joys we shared, the defeats we met. The friends we made, the friends we lost. This was all a part of high school.

Whether Freshman or Sophomore, Junior or Senior, we all had our good and bad times alike. But most of this we would not change, and even if we could, we would still experience those times at Arsenal Technical High School. For this is a special school. Our experiences here are different and special. We are special, to each other, to ourselves. Our buildings are special. They have withstood years of wear. They have withstood years of students running down their halls, talking with friends in the halls outside of class, romances blooming in a classroom with that special one across the room. Our campus is special. Grass covered with leaves in the fall and snow in the winter. Trees covered with ice in the winter and buds in the spring. Grounds covered with students all year long, sometimes even after school is out for the day.

Our students are special. Here every race, creed, and color has the chance to learn with one another, to talk with one another, to exist with one another, all without the fear of others putting us down.

Our experiences and opportunities are special. We have at our fingertips the resources with which to change the world.

We have the chance to make this either the best or worst times of our lives. Using everything that we have, every way that we know possible, we can make our lives at high school the very best times of our lives.

STUDENTS TAKE BREAK FROM CLASSES

At Tech, a student's day is filled from the first moment he arrives at school. He may even arrive at school early to participate in a club such as Mu Alpha Theta (math club), or Key Club.

The bell rings; it's off to class for our student. He may head to a vocational or academic class, ranging from computers to psychology. Depending on his curriculum, he may stay in that class or go on to another, such as Earth science, or expository writing.

Soon, fourth period's over, and our student is on his way to roll call to hear the day's announcements. After this informative fifteen minutes, he's off to another class, or perhaps to lunch. He may go to the cafeteria to eat, or sit outside on campus, talking with friends, or getting some unfinished homework done before class starts. After lunch, it's off to class again, perhaps to Techoir, band, or yearbook.

After a few more classes, our student's day is over. Or is it? Maybe he's heading over to the auditorium for play rehearsals, or over to the pool for team practices. Sometime, however, all this must end, and our student heads home to eat dinner, finish homework, and get a good night's sleep, because he needs energy to keep up the pace at school to handle everything.

Fabulous Floats Finally Fantastic

The night of October 1, 1982 is a night we'll all remember. We were treated to a number of fine memories. One of the closest Homecoming games played in years, the parading of some of the best floats ever seen, great fireworks, and the crowning of the 1982 Homecoming King and Queen.

The Game was a see-saw battle all the way. The score was 12 all, and it was time for overtime. We had first possession of the ball, and the Titans failed to score. Marshall got the ball and the Mighty Titans held the Patriots to fourth down and one yard to go. The Patriots' coach decided to kick a field goal. The kick was made and it was good. Although we lost, it was a very exciting game and we commend our Titans.

The senior float competition was won by 701. They had a dragon roasting a Patriot. One of the judges commented that these were some of the best floats she had seen in years.

The fireworks this year were better than good, they were excellent. The booms, bright colors, and best of all the lighting of T-I-T-A-N-S was fabulous. The finality of fireworks was highlighted by the releasing of many fireworks together.

Now we come to the big moment of Homecoming, the crowning of the 1982 King and Queen. All the candidates gathered on the field (Mark Canfield and Angela Collins—701; Todd Harris and Pangie Franklin—720; Richard Lay and Natalie Lewis—721; John Reed and Cheryl Ray—722; Tommy Walker and Denise White—648) to await the announcing of the winner. Finally, after a minute that seemed like a year, the winners were announced—Todd Harris—702 and Natalie Lewis—721. Yes, definitely a night to remember.

Speech Team Shows Full Potential

It is five o'clock on a cold Saturday morning. No one has left his bed except one lone teenager. This teen is a member of the Tech Speech Team. He is preparing to go to Dunkin Donuts to meet with his teammates.

From the donut shop the team gets into several cars bound for Connersville.

Why would any normal, sane human being get up this time of day?

And why on a Saturday? If he had any sense he would stay at home and eat breakfast in bed.

The car passes sites which are totally foreign to our city bred student. He sees, of all things, a silo.

It comes to his mind that the only other waking things are cows. To stop himself from dwelling on his need for sleep, he starts to rehearse his speech.

It is friends, Romans, countrymen, or is it Romans, friends,—countrymen? He finally gives up trying. It is too early to tax his brain. What can one expect if he is recovering from the game the night before.

Once having arrived at Connersville he begins going to his rounds. During the third round, while he fights to stay awake, he reminds himself that it is worth the trouble. He is a member of one of the top five teams in the state. He almost fell asleep on a fellow contestant. After the fourth round our speaker is fully awake. Unfortunately there are only four rounds. He now begins the one to three hour wait to discover whether he won or not. He joins in the general cheering when the awards are finally presented. The presenter has reached his category, the Titan holds his breath . . .

Did our Speech Team member win? The out-come is different at every meet. Even if he did not place, the speaker will be up at five next Saturday. You got it; he still wonders why. Deep down inside he knows why.

New Beginnings . . .

We have come to the end of the beginning—graduation. We are leaving behind us priceless memories, good friends, and our childhood. It is time for us to take that first giant step into the adult world.

Tech will always occupy a special spot in our hearts. Here, we have taken the first faltering steps on the long road of life. Here, we have made lasting friendships and had happy times. We are sad to leave, but the future calls us.

Goodbye Tech, we will miss you.

Students Work Toward Career Goals

Career classes offer students a wide choice of classes. Students can choose a mechanics class. For those who would like to fly, Aviation is a good class. Plumbing may be the class for you if your goal is to be a plumber. For you car nuts there is Auto Shop.

For a future business person, a class like Introduction to Data Processing is a start on the way to a computer career. After this, one would go on to take RPG, Cobol, and, then Fortran. Whatever type of class a student chooses to take, if it is offered through our Career Center, it will provide excellent instruction.

What Do Simple Folk Do?

Does the word "Camelot" inspire visions of knights and ladies, and bright pageantry? At Tech, "Camelot" succeeded in bringing these images to brilliant, dazzling life. For two and a half hours Tech students were transported to the romance of Arthur's England.

The tale of Arthur (Marcelino Quintana), Guinevere (Colleen Contreras), and his best friend, Lancelot (Jay Hood), unfolded before our eyes. The greatest story of the middle ages was made believable through the performances of the entire cast.

Lively songs and dances, such as "The Lusty Month of May," and "What do the Simple Folk do?" amusingly conveyed the spirit of the times.

The dramatic trial of Guinevere held the audience spellbound. Numerous battles and skirmishes added realism.

Four characters provided some hilarious comic relief. The evil Mordred (Richard Lay), and his aunt, Morgan LeFay (Pam Henshaw), had an amusing argument regarding the uses of spells and candy. Crazy King Pelinore (Mike Seuss) delighted the audience almost as much as Horrid, (Lee Barricklow's gigantic dog).

"Camelot," with its Lerner and Lowe score, graced Tech's stage for three performances, but its cast, crews, musicians, and directors may keep their memories forever.

The Best of Times . . .

"The Best of Times" well-describes a student's Senior year. The Senior year is filled with fun, glamour, friends, and also some tears.

Part of the fun is due to just being a Senior. After these years of school, the long hours are almost over.

The senior year is also full of events especially for the Senior.

These include Tug-a-War, Sadie Hawkins' Day, and Homecoming. In these events, the Seniors show how proud they are to be a Senior.

Friends are big part of the Senior's last year. Without them, who would the Senior share all their hopes, joys, and sorrows with?

Many Seniors look forward to one event their Senior year; their Senior Prom! The lights, the music, and the people, add up to make it one of the most special and memorable nights ever.

All too soon, however, it seems that this must end. This is the time when the tears fall. Seniors know the end is near. The final big event is Graduation. Before the event, there is just enough time to wish good luck to a few, or many friends. Then it is time. The procession starts, and before long, it is over. Then the tears really fall, in happiness, for all the good times, and possibly in confusion of their life ahead.

When everything is rationalized in the end, the Senior realizes one thing: these certainly were "The Best of Times!"

Tech Legion—1983

Members of Tech Legion for 1983 are Elisa L. Aguilera; Kevin T. Alcorn; co-commander; Christy Jo Anderson; Lori Jean Armour; Penny C. Bibles, captain; Dwight A. Boucher; Micah E. Briner; Ronald Brown; Dagmar Butte, captain; Beverly Ann Cameron; Sherry Ann Carpenter; Trace L. Davis; Brenda Sue Decker; Rochelle Elliot; Linda V. Evans; N. Sue Evans; Walter Folkening; Micheal Forsee; Cathy Franklin; Ann Gin, captain; April D. Grimsley; Gerald Hamilton; Tonita Hamilton; Dawn Harris; Cathy Ann Hess; Debra Ann Hines; David S. Hon; Annette C. Hunter, captain; Kevin R. Jefferson; Jeffery D. Johnfauno; Steven L. Jones; Tanya Ann Moore; Christopher A. O'Conner; Angela E. Pfile, co-commander; Lisa K. Polston, captain; Christina M. Price; Cheryl M. Ray; John L. Reed; Donald E. Rushton; Karl Sebastian; Lacey M. Shaw; Shaune R. Shelby; Jane Shotwell; Leo T. Spearman; Walter Stone; John A. Sullivan; Denise R. Ulsh; Cleovis D. West; Myla J. White; Terri J. Wildrick; Alicia A. Wilson; Christy Ann Wilson; Jerold F. Yates; and Terri L. Young.

The thrill mirrored on 54 happy faces has a very specific reason. These 54 Titans have been chosen as members of Tech Legion. Tech Legion is an honorary society for outstanding Tech Students. It does not primarily honor academic achievement, but rather citizenship, leadership, and other attributes worthy of recognition.

Legion also has its own officers; those five students with the most merits are named captains. The two students, one boy and one girl, with the absolute highest number of merits are named co-commanders. This year's captains were Penny Bibles, Dagmar Butte, Anne Gin, Annette Hunter, and Lisa Polston. The co-commanders were Kevin Alcorn and Angela Pfile.

Underclassmen should set as their goal membership in Tech Legion, an honor which still has meaning.

Honor Students Study Fo(u)r Years.

One of the biggest honors at Tech can be achieved through hard work. It is one of the few things over which the student has total control. It is gaining a 7.0 or higher grade point average.

To achieve this honor one need not be a bespectacled genius. The things required are few, but essential. One is a brain in good working condition, another is the ability to work hard. Once these two have been put together the student is on his way to a 7.0 grade average. This year 32 seniors had the necessary qualifications, and knew how to put them together. Who knows how many the future will hold.

The Best of Times . . .

When one sees people having fun they usually think it is just the seniors, but underclassmen do have their "Best of Times." A person can usually tell the difference between freshmen, sophomores, juniors, and seniors.

The freshmen find they have great freedom, and act as such. They can be seen running around campus, and climbing in trees, acting like monkeys in other words. The grades usually suffer during this year of school.

When the freshman turn into sophomores, they usually "mellow out." They crack the books and keep their noses buried until one week is left in the year. The sophomores soon anticipate their junior year, and get sophoritis towards the end of the year.

The juniors are really wild. They think they can almost run the school. The seniors will soon be gone and it is theirs to have.

This is a general summation of the different action of the grades. If one would ask them, they would think that they had "The Best of Times."

The Best of Times . . .

The biggest part of "The Best of Times" at Tech are activities other than readin', writin', and 'rithmetic.

Students at Tech are offered a variety of activities. They are sure to find something.

Some of the most popular groups seem to be the music groups.

Whether a singing group such as Techoir, or an instrumental group such as Band, a student's passion for music will be sustained.

If the student is a club-type person, the possibilities here are endless. There is Mu Alpha Theta for math nuts, or German or French for those who speak another language.

If drama is their thing, they can join Drama Club. If they want to help construct the sets, they can join the Stagecraft Club.

If they are not "in to" clubs, or music, but have a knack for making speeches, they can join the Speech

Team. If they are "into" writing and Journalism, Yearbook or Newspaper are filled with fun.

Those students in a business or vocational class, can become involved in groups like V.I.C.A., and I.C.E.C., concentrating on a particular area of business or a vocation.

Students who prefer council-type activity can join Junior Council or SAO. The "brains" can find happiness on the Brain Game.

Other activities of great interest include Bowling Team, Genealogy Club, and R.O.T.C.

There are even some activities that happen only once a year giving students a chance to "show their stuff." These are the Fall Play, and the Vica Talent Show.

Whatever a student chooses, it will certainly be an added event to "The Best of Times!"

ACTIVITIES

Number 1 in Spirit!!!

Rain, snow or sun shine they are there. Who are they? They are the Tech Cheerleaders. Cheering at basketball and football games, pep rallies and other events. The cheerleaders are there to boost the crowds morale, and cheer the teams on to victory. The senior cheerleaders this year are Denise White, Celeste Webster, Kim Jones, Tanya Northcross, and Myla White. Win or lose, by one point, or by many, the cheerleaders are there, putting smiles on everyone's faces.

The girls are watching Denise. One wonders why!

Far from the crowded gyms on Friday night, a group of cheerleaders practice. They will not be cheering at every, and some at no, varsity game, but their workout is heavy. Yells and complicated motions combine to raise the spirits of the team. This scenario is familiar to the Tech Reserve and Freshman Cheerleaders. They are not yet Varsity, but their spirit and enthusiasm is comparable to any squad.

Pity the poor girls on the bottom.

Bottom: Freshman Cheerleaders execute a flashy mount.

Cheerleaders Show The Way

Mat Maids Show Spirit

The Mat-Maids are a time honored institution at Tech. They cheer on the always talented wrestling teams, with shouts and stunts. They work hard on their cheers in order to let the team know that they wish them luck, success, and a pin.

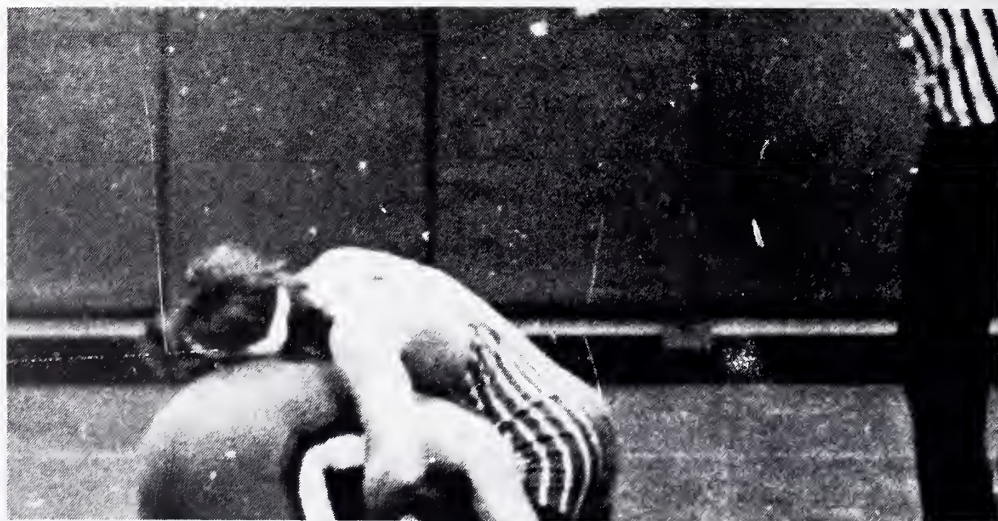

Mat-Maids are chosen by a similar procedure as cheerleaders. They also perform the same basic functions, only for wrestling. A Mat-Maid may have to put in a lot of hard work, but it has its rewards.

The matmaids are arranged by spirit, all equally important in everyone's eyes.

These three lovely young ladies certainly are prettier than the wrestlers.

Speaking of pretty wrestlers, Which matmaid would put Jerry in this group?

Oh, agony! That's one less to cheer for.

In Search of . . .

An attentive listener is a joy to those who have a story to tell.

far left: The man in the strange suit is not Paul Revere.

Genealogy Club
The mystery of one's past and the thrill of finding the truth.
If these statements spark your interest perhaps you should look into genealogy. Tech's club sponsors many activities such as visiting graveyards, exploring old records, and digging through library files.
They also attend many cultural historical events. Its members and sponsor, Mrs. Elizabeth Wilson, keep busy all year round.

center: Two travelers from Tech are lost in another country.

far right: John Basham has found himself a friend.

When one thinks of Brain Game, a group of bespectacled, supercilious, gangly males come to mind. The stereotype of a Brain Game Team. Tech's team does not fit into this neat little pidgeon hole. The team of all females, led by sponsor Wes Murphy, annihilated an all male team from George Washington High School in the first round. In the second round this team of veterans fell woefully short, being defeated by a buzzer-happy Carmel team.

Intelligence is Pushing Buzzer

Does anyone know where the capitol of Upper Volta is?

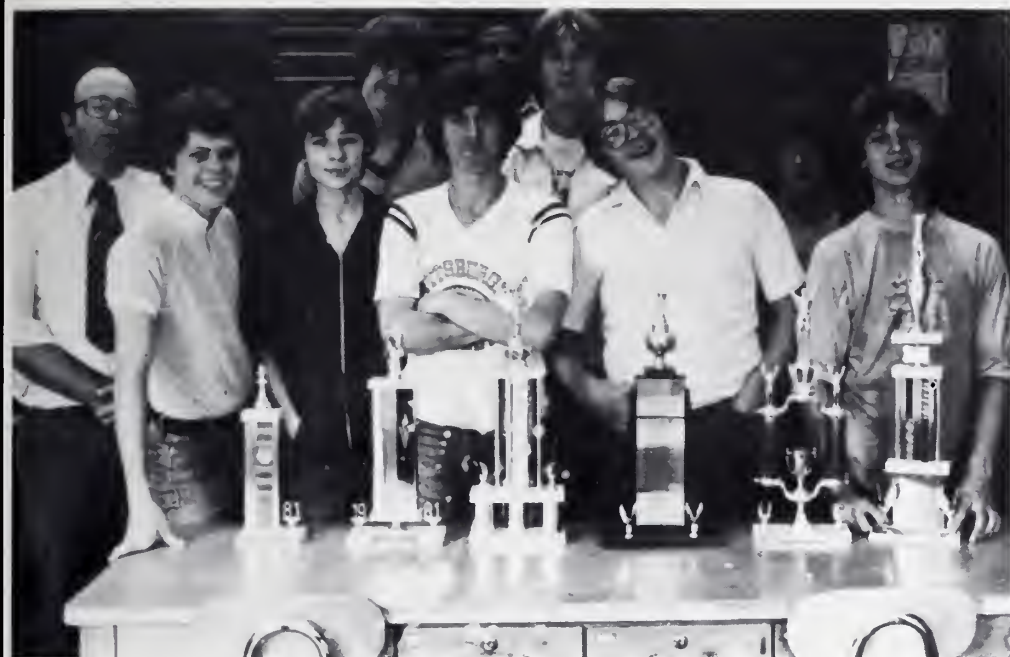

You can almost hear the wheels clicking in their minds, or is it rocks?

Every sponsor deserves to be in one picture.

Tanja Moore and Angie Pfile prove they do have brains by receiving National Merit scholarships.

When talk centers around a challenging game of strategy, chess invariably comes to mind. Tech's chess team proves constantly that chess is a skill worth developing. They compete against schools from all over the state. Tech's successes speak for themselves in the many trophies they have won through the years.

Under the capable direction of their coach, William McCreary, the chess team not only enjoys the challenges available to them, they also meet them.

El Torro Meets the Champs Elysée

The Spanish Club is a popular club here at Tech. Sponsored by Mrs. Cheryl Wyne, the club conducts activities and events built around the Spanish language. Spanish dances, meals, and visits from native Spanish speakers are just a few of these activities.

The French Club sponsored by Mrs. Serine Fine is another of the very active foreign language clubs. Not only do they prepare food native to France, they actually consume their own concoctions.

A few members of the Spanish Club gather to hear about Mexico.

We never saw the French Club, so we drugged and abducted its vice president.

Sponsor Cheryl Wyne is surrounded by aficionados de español.

There you have it, The Spanish Club ready for another of their many projects.

Germany Has Nothing to Worry About!

Learning the language of a foreign country is indeed beneficial. It is even more so if the student has an opportunity to use his knowledge. One of these opportunities for students of German is the German Club. Sponsored by Mr. Dan Stanley, this club engages in many activities which bring to life the ways and customs of Germany.

Studying the language, tasting the food native to the land, are just a few of the activities which the German Club enjoys.

Drama Club Puts on the Show

The eloquence of Shakespeare, the drama of O'Neill, the humor of Simon; these authors and their plays may not find their way onto Tech stages, but they do serve as examples to Titan Thespians.

The Drama/Thespians, sponsored by Stan Minks and Judy McBride, are involved in a variety of activities. Not only do they perform in their own productions, they also attend the productions of other groups. They are definitely an active bunch.

Two aspiring stars work to perfect their craft.

Yes, all these people are absolutely sane.

Thespians Prove They Can Act

The International Thespian Society is an honor society for Drama Club members. Induction into this great society requires a total of at least ten points. Points are accumulated through difficult activities. Some of the such activities include not only acting in plays and musicals, but also attending plays, working back stage at plays, and other numerous activities. Different activities are worth different points. Members of the Society show that they are interested enough in drama and its aspects to accumulate these points.

Even after one has been initiated into the society, he can keep accumulating points until he is out of high school.

Speakers Bring Home the Awards

Tech is blessed with many active teams and clubs. One of the more outstanding is the Speech Team. It is exactly what the name implies, a group of people who speak competitively. The rewards are ribbons, trophies, and sometimes money.

A speaker can choose from a wide variety of categories. If memorization is one of your skills, humorous, dramatic, or oratory may be to your liking. Poetry, prose, or duo requires no memorization. If you simply talk a lot, extemp or impromptu may be your thing.

Tech's Speech Team is considered to be among the top five in the state. It's easy to see why! Coach Alice Goodrum works very hard with the team, and its members use their talents to bring home the awards.

Bright shiny trophies are a proof of success.

Ordinarily the letters NFL evoke a picture of muscle bound, neckless men trying to kill each other. At Tech they stand for National Forensic League, an honorary society for speakers.

Speakers gather points at speech meets and club contests to become part of this select group. 25 points are required, but special degrees require more points.

The hard work and early rising pays off in ribbons, trophies, and membership in an exclusive group.

Tech audiences received a rare glimpse into the workings of the theatrical world when they attended the presentation of "Stage Door".

The scene was set in a boarding house for actresses, The Footlights Club. One of the actresses, Jean Maitland (Camille Goodrum), realizes her dream. She is started in Hollywood, and returns to the club in bittersweet triumph.

Two others, Judith Canfield (Dagmar Butte), and Kaye Hamilton (Angie Pfile), have their own methods of dealing with their profession. Judith covers everything in hard biting sarcasm. Kaye uses the ultimate escape mechanism; she commits suicide.

The main focus of the play is Terry Randall (Tina Price), a struggling young actress who desires only the stage. She is influenced in her actions by Keith Burgess (Michael Suess), an aspiring playwright, and David Kingsley (George England), a famous Hollywood producer. She gets her wish, and David Kingsley in the bargain.

All these proceedings are under the auspices of Helen Romaine Orcutt (Debbie McManama), a faded actress with a mind of cobwebs, and a heart of gold.

"Stage Door" was an entertaining insight into life.

Terry tells of the plight of an actress, while her friends sympathize.

The Men and Women Behind the Scenes

Have you ever attended a play at Tech and thought; "Look at those sets; I wonder who made them?" The answer is quite simple. The sets were put together by the hands of Stage Craft Club members, under the direction of Mr. Ray Brown.

Stage Craft not only provides sets for plays, but they also make signs, etc., for school functions.

The next time you sit in the auditorium wondering who the artist was behind a sign or prop, just ask a member of Stage Craft.

Listening carefully to Mr. Brown's instructions may prove to be helpful.

It may be heavy, but these folks are used to it.

Sometimes getting the stage ready just means pushing a chair.

John Lee watches while someone else does all the work.

Broadcast Wakes Up Roll Call

"Good Morning Titans, here we are bringing you another WATS broadcast." Familiar words to most Titans at every Roll Call. They belong to the WATS broadcasting team atop Stuart Hall.

Every day this group of Speech Team members furnishes Tech students with vital information for the day. A clear voice is preferred, as is reading ability beyond the 2nd grade. With these few basic skills WATS can and does come to life.

Titans Relate to All

A very important function falls to a seldom recognized organization here at Tech. The Human Relations Council came into existence to promote good relations not only among Tech students and faculty, but to serve goodwill in general.

Its sponsors Roosevelt Griffin and Martha Bradshaw help their club to recognize and execute good human relations.

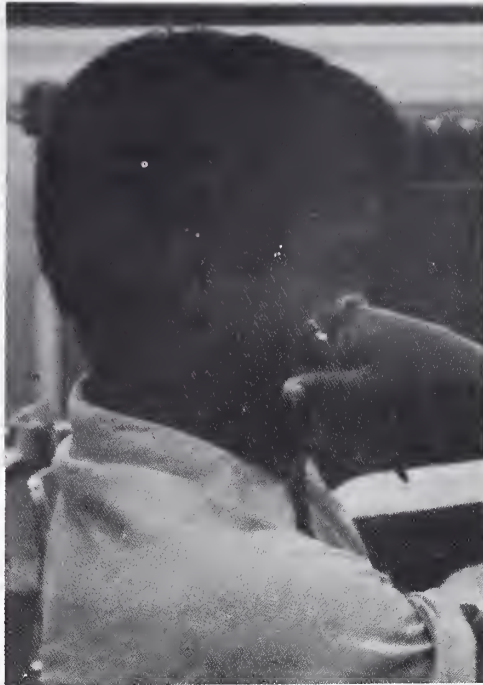

Darrel Gibson is deep in thought. One wonders.

Sponsor Mrs. Bradshaw is thinking of the next project.

This is the place where better Human Relations are a part of every day life.

The Human Relations Council poses with their sponsors. Even a busy group has time for a picture.

Better relations are fostered at every turn, even with food.

A Salute to Activities!

It is that time again, the pages have gone in, the stories have been written, and the pictures have been taken, maybe. This section has been put aside as a showcase for Tech activities.

In the forty odd pages almost every activity is represented. The key word here is almost. For a variety of reasons, such as lack of pictures, lost or stolen pictures, errors in developing, some activities will find themselves not represented.

The fact that their pictures do not appear in this book does not make them any less important. They are as vital a part of the Tech community as any other group. The major omissions are DECA, SAO, ICT, and the Key Club.

DECA is the organization for Distributive Education. This group is comprised of students who are preparing for a career in business. They compete in mock professional situations for very real prizes. DECA has a membership pooled mostly from career education classes.

SAO is the Student Affairs Organization. This group is a branch of student government. They are involved in many activities which promote Tech and Titans in general. Members of SAO sponsor a variety of events such as the election of Homecoming and Basketball Queens. They are involved indeed, and their activities make Tech a more exciting place.

ICT is another organization for students who are preparing for a career. ICT is Industrial Careers Training. The students, under the sponsorship of Mr. Holmes, are interested in a variety of industrial careers.

ICT prepares Titans to be not only competitive, but efficient.

Lastly, Key Club was omitted from the pages of the Arsenal Cannon. This Club is one of the most active at Tech. It is also one of the few who do something for others. The Key Club is a service organization, providing services for Tech and the Indianapolis community.

One of the Key Club's biggest activities is in connection with the Salvation Army's Bell Ringing campaign. Tech led the high school division in amounts collected. Tech bell ringers brought in $801.05.

Another Key Club function is during Homecoming. Yes, they are the driving force behind the fabulous fireworks display which delights Titans every year.

There are other activities on the Tech campus. They were not on our pages, but they did affect Tech. This is not an apology, but rather a salute to all activities at Tech. They have shown Titans not only the way to a brighter high school career but to a better life.

The things which are learned from participation in activities are invaluable. Learning to take responsibilities, getting along with other people, and having new experiences will be beneficial to all involved.

In conclusion, a word of appreciation must be said to all activity sponsors. They give of their time and talents in order to provide a memorable experience for the students. Too often their efforts are ignored. Sometimes the students do not even give thought to those people who bear the brunt of the headaches. A "thank you" to the sponsors and the students who combined to create the "Best of Times."

OEA Knocks Competition Cold

Agriculture has Future Farmers of America, but what do business and secretarial students have to organize themselves? They have the Office Education Association.

This professional club allows students to explore their chosen vocations. Students are able to compete in contests, and gain practical experience in their planned professions. This valuable organization leaves Titans better prepared for the job market, and able to compete.

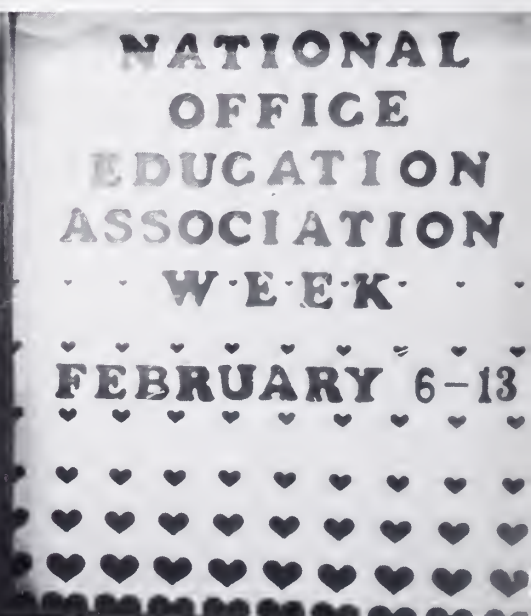

These are the winners at contest. A large group, definitely typical for Tech.

Kim Jones seems to wish the young man's ID was a little more "flattering".

That one word says it all, and the pictures don't hurt either.

Tammy Lucas is just typing her fingers to the bone.

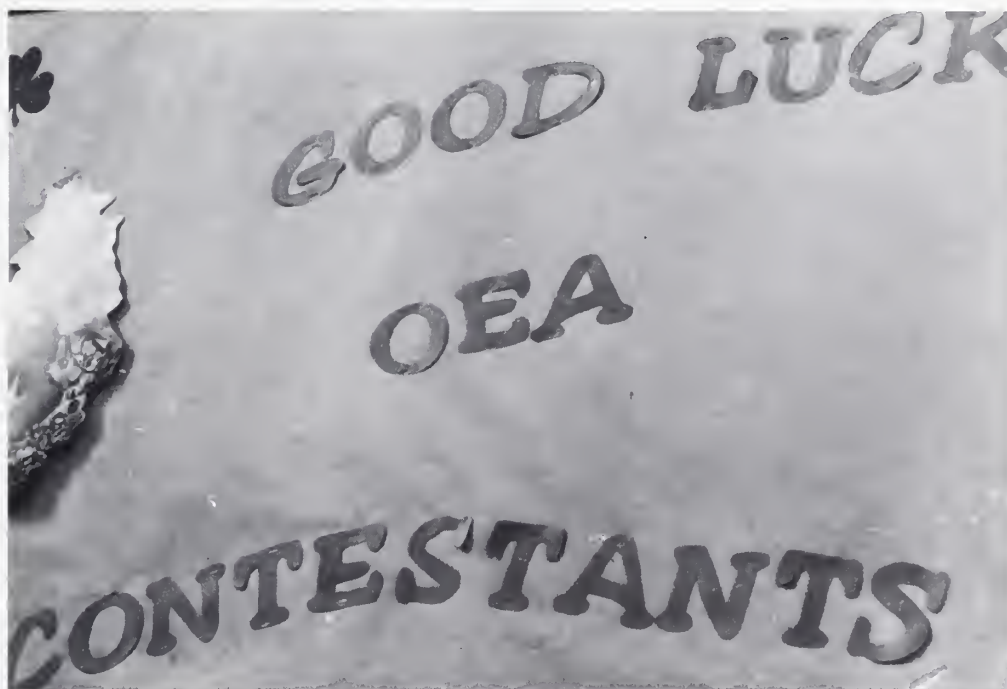

That must have been an exciting week.

Another of the preprofessional organizations at Tech is VICA. This group of young men and women keeps active in their respective fields. The highlight in the year is the annual VICA Talent Show. It is an opportunity for Titans to display their talents, and for VICA to raise money. Active and prepared, that could be the VICA slogan.

VICA members have their future together.

Typing is a lonely job, but somebody has got to do it.

This message can certainly inspire victory.

These young professionals are certainly looking spiffy in their blazers.

OEA Leads the Way, and VICA Takes Aim

Techoir Makes Beautiful Music

Techoir may be smaller than in the past, but boy what a sound.

Richard, would you please come to class!

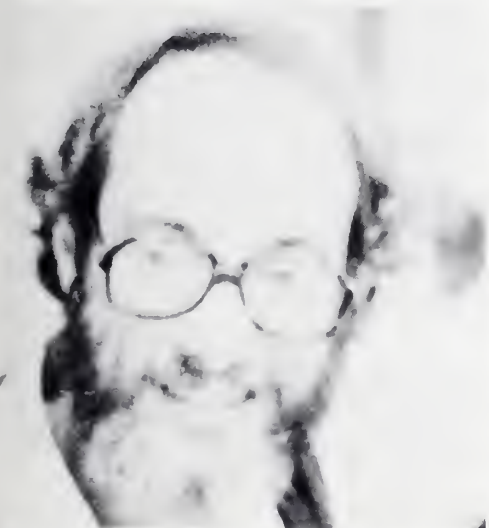

"Basses you're pushing us down, but the sopranos aren't helping!"

The halls are alive with the sound of music. With a few minor changes, these words are very familiar to music lovers. At Tech they require no adjustment to be correct.

Every year, Techoir entertains not only Tech, but the entire community. Under the direction of Paul Prather, and accompanied by Edward Davis, they perform at various functions and contests. Christmas in the Round, the Concerto Concert, and the annual Spring Concert give rise to the sound of music. One can tell Techoir follows its pledges to "canimus ex animo."

Try it in this key; it's much prettier!

Our accompanist, affectionately known as Pepper.

Finally they got that measure correct. Isn't it phenomal?

On the darkened stage, the choir sings from the heart.

Hark, How the Bells!

Tim and student teacher Karen Stinger look over their music.

Those darn stands always hide their faces.

Christmas in the Round is a highlight of the season.

Bells 'a ringing. If you wander unsuspecting through the halls of the Cafeteria you just might hear the magical sound of ringing bells. Tech is one of the few schools fortunate enough to have a Bell Choir. Under the direction of Lee Barricklow, they perform all through the year. All their songs are played only with bells. Their music does much to enliven the Christmas season.

Chamber Ensemble Goes Back in Time

bottom: The poor unfortunates slave away in the kitchen.

Most people, at one time or another, have had a desire to sing, dance, and be merry. Tech's Chamber Ensemble does just that. In the beginning of the year they are the Madrigals. The highlight of their season is the annual Madrigal Dinner. Lords and Ladies, pages and wenches, and the ever present jester entertain on the yuletide.

After the dinner, the group does a rapid change. They become the Swing Choir. Their repertoire includes popular music; this covers a period from the turn of the century to the present. This is the time of the year when dancing becomes important. For one year, this group of 23 people, directed by Paul Prather, with the assistance of Edward Davis, works very hard to make music.

Trumpeters Sound the Call for a

Jazzing It Up on Stage

On occasion, the halls in the Cafeteria-Music Building seem to rock with the sound of Jazz and Blues. Those occasions are thanks to the Stage Band. Under the direction of Edward Evans these talented musicians bring to life the sounds of another era, as well as those of today.

The Stage Band plays for various events to the delight of its listeners. The halls may seem to rock, but it's only the sound of the roaring brass.

Mr. Evans seems to be listening closely.

John Reed enjoys playing his drums.

Let's see, is it in A double flat or G sharp?

Can Jim and Mark really play the sax?

Three guys, all in a row.

Strings Play Beautiful Music.

Instrumentalists have a variety of outlets for their talents; one of these outlets is the String Ensemble. As its name implies, the ensemble is composed of string players and one pianist.

Under the direction of Mable Lewis, the director of the orchestra, they perform at various functions. Their repertoire includes classical as well as modern pieces, and they do them full justice. The beautiful sound of violins, played well, falls gently on the ear.

The String Ensemble prepares to entertain the audience.

Mrs. Lewis may have her back to the audience, but her attention is on the show.

Let's take a bow for a job well done.

Concert Plays Well

Come rain, sleet, or snow, one group always seems to come through. The Titan Band. In the Fall and Spring they are the Marching Band. At games and parades the band performs songs from their extensive collection. They march and perform no matter how bad weather or how tired the legs.

Later in the season the band becomes known as the Tech Concert Band. It performs at assemblies, concerts, and in the annual Spring Concert. The band also prepares selections for competition in State Music Contest.

Under Lee Barricklow and senior drum majors Kathy Jordan and Denise Ulsh the Band shows their mettle at every opportunity.

Stringing Out the Year

"Have you ever played the strings?" "What the heck are strings?" you might ask. Strings are violins, violas, cellos, and basses.

These instruments require considerable skill to play, and considerable talent to master. One group which tries its best to play and master these and other instruments is the Orchestra. With the help of its director, Mable Lewis, these young musicians create a sound all their own.

C'mon guys, you can play that song.

Mrs. Lewis gives instructions through clear direction.

Even on stage the big cellos have to stand up.

The entire orchestra is smiling brightly, or are some of them laughing at the photographer?

Junior Council Prepares for Senior Year

Junior Council—What do they do? Almost everything! Mostly, Junior Council is there to help the Senior Council with the Prom. But, throughout the year Junior Council plans many activities to help raise part of the funds necessary to finance the Prom.

One of the biggest events they hold is their annual eight hour Rock-A-Thon. They also sell derbies during the basketball season, as well as selling other items throughout the year.

Junior Council also helps Senior Council with Career Day in the Fall. Career Day helps both juniors and seniors alike to make major decisions about colleges by offering material from a wide choice of colleges and technical schools.

The big event of the year is the Prom, in which Junior Council is a big part of the planning, decorating, and carrying out the Prom itself. Officers for the council this year are President; Stephanie Gynn; Vice-president: Debra McManama; Secretary: Vanita Farrow; Treasurer: Paula Cooper; and Sargeant-at-arms: Tiersa Greene.

Wackiness Takes Over

RECIPE

For the makings of a fantastic Yearbook and Newspaper, the ingredients are as follows:

- 1 Large Room
- 60 Broad Minded Cannon Staffers
- 2 Slightly Wacky Advisors
- 600 Cramped Fingers
- Some Very Boggled Brains
- 1 Photo Dark Room
- 6 Rattly Typewriters

Combine with mass confusion, nervous frustrations, temper tantrums. Put them all together in room 638. The outcome is not Central State Hospital, but your dedicated Cannon staff of 1982/1983.

Stir together typewriters, 600 or so cramped fingers, some boggled brains, missed deadlines, and scratched negatives, and our advisor, Mrs. J. Brown, gets acid indigestion. How does she spell relief?

In another wacky state of mind, C. T. Tresslar, our newspaper advisor, and his roving reporters are always ready to tackle the latest news floating around Tech's campus.

Ready, willing, and able the "Clark Kents" of the bi-weekly paper have pad and pencil at hand, waiting for that ultimate story.

Baking for a good 9-10 months, both the yearbook and the newspaper staffs are steadily concentrating on the finished product. Most will be amazed at the end results.

Opposite page, top left: The yearbook and newspaper staffs are clowning around. Maybe they are always like this.

the Year

Discipline, rigorous training, respect, teaching skills. This may seem as if it is a complicated program at university, instead it is merely a high school ROTC program.

The ROTC teaches its members many valuable skills which will last for a lifetime. ROTC students first learn discipline and respect. This discipline comes from hours of hard work and practice. Respect they do not only their teachers, but also their student superiors.

Also they learn teaching skills. Each ROTC student is required to teach a class to his fellow students. This not only forces him to come up with a lesson plan, but he also has to get the students to listen and follow his instruction.

Whether the student plans a career in the military or not, his experience in ROTC will serve him well wherever he may go. The effect on his life will be nothing but beneficial.

Picture yourself in a green suit. No you're not Mr. Greenjeans, or even the Green Giant, you are merely a student in the Reserve Officer Training Corps. The uniform identifies you as a member of an extremely large group of students here at Tech.

Let us follow you through a typical day in the Barracks. You have a unique opportunity here at Tech. When most students learn in cold classrooms, you are actually studying in buildings which once housed real armed servicemen. The Barracks are your main hangout.

If you happen to be fortunate you will already be an officer. But for our purposes you are a PFC, Private First Class John Doe.

It is Thursday morning, inspection time. You make sure your shoes are gleaming brightly, and the buttons on your uniform shine. You begin classes just as you ordinarily do. Perhaps you are wondering why the rest of your classmates are starting at your outfit. You explain for the 454th time that you have to wear your uniform every Thursday.

Perhaps no one asks you the usual question. The routine remains simple. Just because today is inspection, you can't get all nervous, but you are. After all, I forgot to tell you one thing, this is your first inspection freshman.

Finally comes the big moment. You are definitely nervous. Why shouldn't you be? Sergeant Willis is an imposing figure, and he is also your superior. Not only is he above you, so are several other students. You shake, and sweat, but miraculously you survive.

Now it is time to concentrate on the fun things. You make plans for your future activities.

There a plenty to choose from. There is the drill team. But no, you are somewhat of a klutz. The drill team requires more skill and precision than you can muster.

The rifle team, that sounds like fun. So what if you never handled a gun before. You're in school to learn. To your surprise you are not allowed to shoot immediately. You are told that you must first show that you are familiar with the weapon and the safety rules.

After all that you breathe a sign of relief. It seems you'll have plenty to do in four years.

The rifle team isn't shooting at anyone for a change.

The Best of Times . . .

Although we may not always think of Tech's faculty as being part of "The Best of Times" of our high school career, when we think about it, where would we be without the faculty?

Without those teachers and administrators to turn to when we needed their help, their advice, and often, their support, we would still be needing help, advice, and support.

Many Tech teachers are there whenever a student needs them. Even if some teachers do not show it, they care about their students.

The administrators keep the school running, even if not always smoothly. The administration has to deal with many problems, ranging from small ones such as student behavior, to the large, often hard problems such as having to surplus teachers.

Once in a while, one comes across a teacher or administrator who seems to care more than all the others. This is that special person to whom you can turn to with problems, and you know they will be able to help you find an answer.

Sometimes, we may even teach our faculty something. It may be as simple as a different way of solving a math problem, or as big as a new outlook on life.

These are "The Best Of Times." They are the "Times of Our Lives." Let's make them even better.

FACULTY

Ward Whalin—principal's assistant

Being assistant to the principal is a bigger job than one would expect. The assistant must aid the principal in matters of the office. Mr. Whalin also advises Mr. Reed on how to run the school better.

Ray Reed—principal

Still being principal at Tech High School is a surprise to Mr. Reed. In the beginning he came on as acting principal, and it became permanent. He was formerly the principal of Franklin Community High School, and then became a science teacher here, and then Dean of Boys. As you can see Mr. Reed has great credentials for principal.

Joseph McGeehan—vice principal

Dr. Joseph McGeehan, Vice Principal of Curriculum Instruction, comes to us here at Tech with a well-educated background.

He went to St. Meinrad College where he obtained a Bachelors degree. From there he went on to Ball State University for his Masters, Indiana University for his Ph.D., and Stanford, where he did his post graduate work.

Robert Stockard—vice principal

Mr. Stockard, among all of his other duties, is the director of the Career Center. The Career Center is a big responsibility, because it is the curriculum that keeps Tech open.

Don Oldham—vice principal

Mr. Oldham keeps an eye on how the students behave. He watches the attendance of certain pupils, and counsels them on their problems. If security is a problem he watches that too, and keeps track of the problemed students.

THE BEST OF TIMES . . .

When we think of Tech sports, we think of "The Best of Times." Each one of Tech's athletic clubs and their athletes are something special. Each shows the pride of Tech and the students that make up the school body.

Whether it's the two points for a basket, a pin to the mat, or a touchdown on the football field, the accomplishments of Tech athletes show through proud, smiling faces, letter sweaters, and medals.

But do not think that all this comes easily, or quickly, for it does not. It comes only after hard work. It takes many practices and much concentration to keep with it, in order to do well. With all this, a true athlete can come through all the odds, and win in the end.

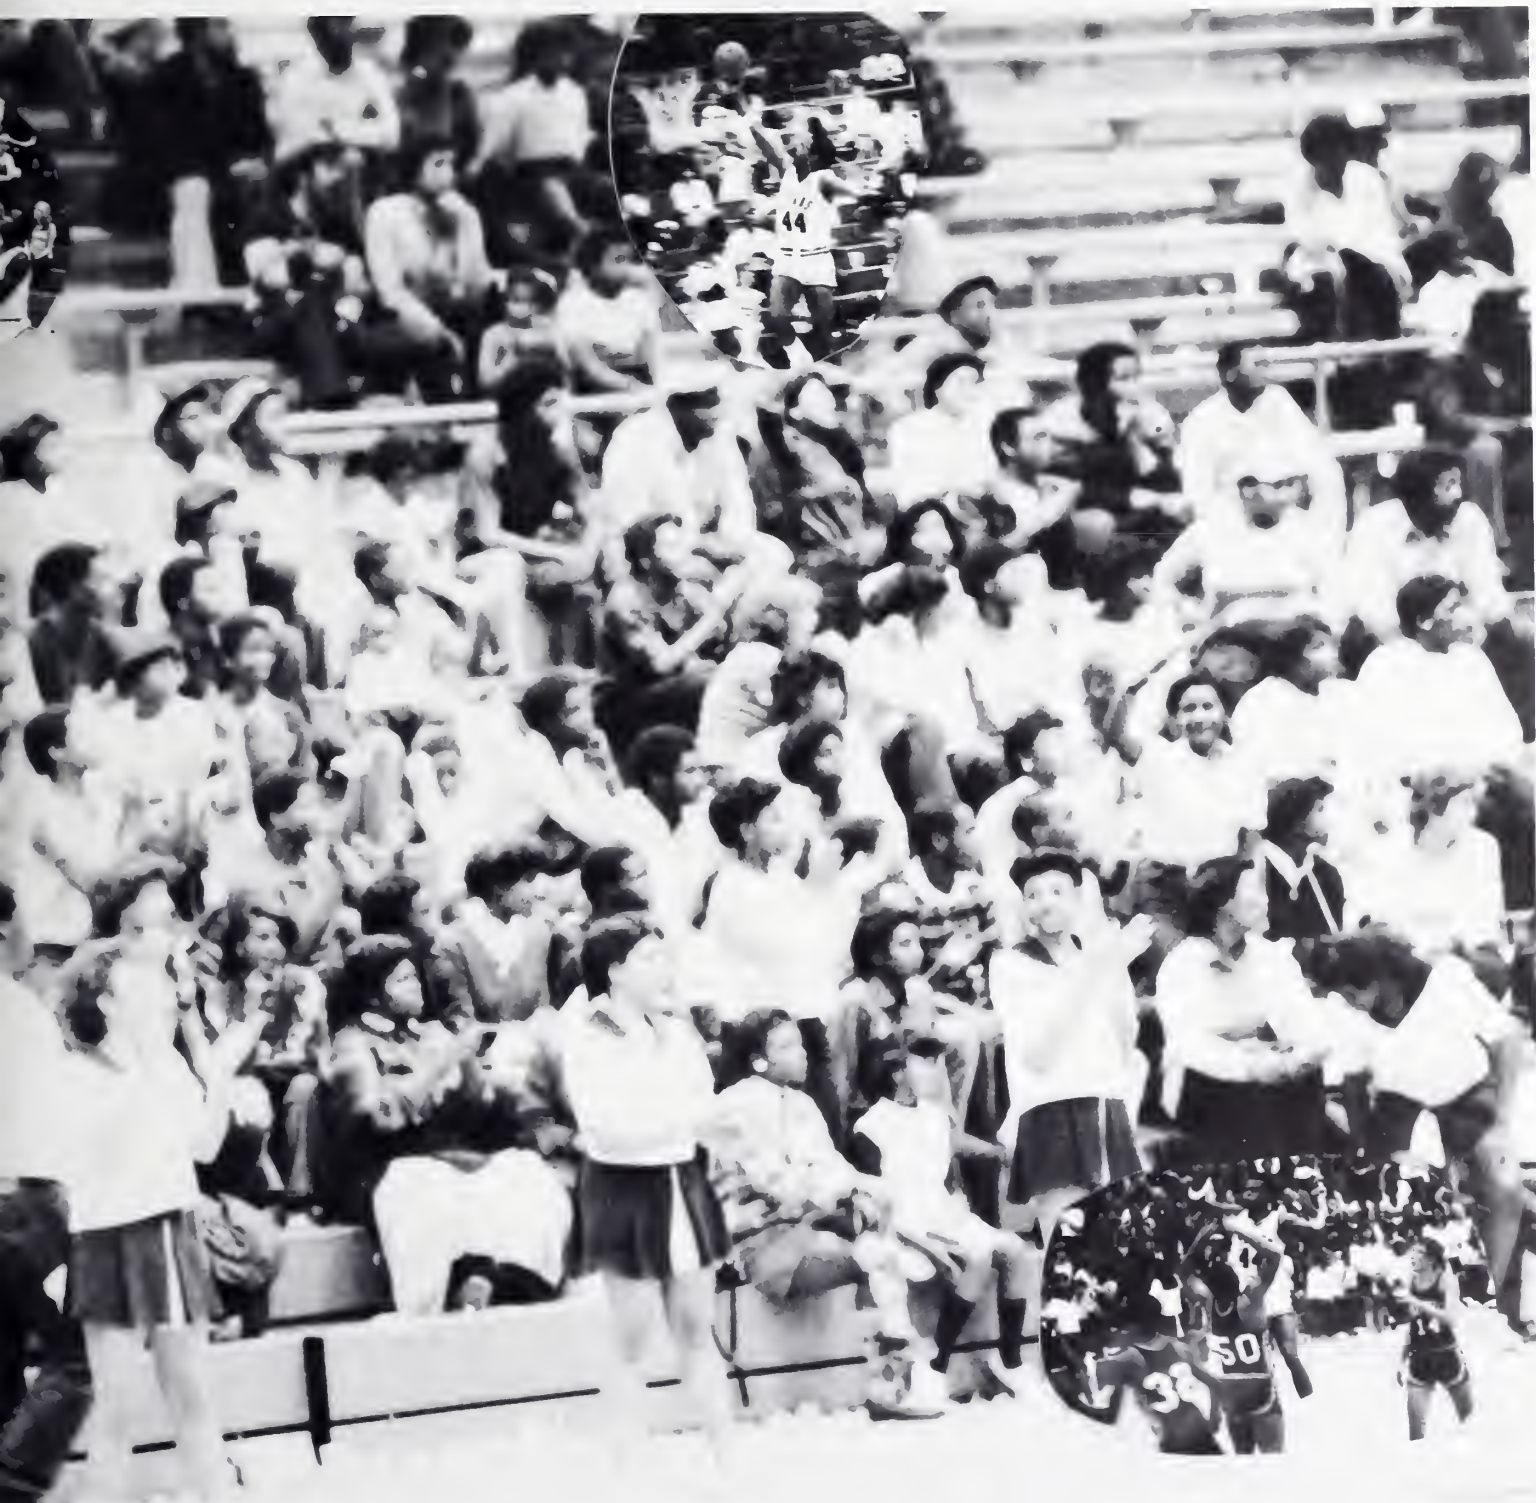

Another important factor in sports is the coaches, of course. Without the coaches, where would the athletes get their inspiration to carry on, and win the game, meet, or match? The coaches are there to give the instruction needed. They are also there to give the pep talks when the going gets tough, or the long speeches when the going gets worse. Whether good times or bad, "The Best of Times," or the worst, the coaches are there.

When the time comes for Tech athletes to give it their all, they do, win, lose, or draw! Years from now, many of Tech's students will look back at their letter sweaters and pins, and remember that those were "The Best of Times."

Although this year is their first year, Tech's Girl's Softball team did quite well.

After much talk in favor of such a team, one was finally organized. The girls even had a softball diamond made for them on one of the fields off of Tech's campus.

One of the girls' best games was against Attucks, in which the final score was 54-0.

Batter Up!!!!

This year has been an interesting year concerning baseball for the Titans. The reserve baseball team had a hard time getting started this season. The team pulled through with a record of 3 and 12.

The freshmen, though, made up for the reserve with 9 victories and 2 defeats.

The teams had both the determination and skill needed to make the season worthwhile. With hard work and fans to cheer them on, the teams both had an exciting year!

Track Team Doesn't Slow Down

Have you ever seen a bunch of runners who were more determined to reach the finish line than our Tech track team? Our team has a sense of pride that is unbelievable. These guys are unmatched! It takes time to get your body into the right muscle structure and to have coordination. After this goal has been accomplished, the runners set harder goals. Most of these guys have met their goal, which is to be the best runner that he can possibly be. Congratulations guys!!!!

The Titans golf team rounded out the season with a good record, considering the inexperience of the team. With its return of only one letterman, the clubbers posted an impressive 12-20 record. Next year the Titans will have four returning lettermen including David Menard, David Lowe, George England, and Michael Scholar. The next year promises to be better and hopes of city champs are not beyond their reaches.

Girl's Sprint with Spirit . . .

The girl's track team consists of some of the most dedicated girls at Tech. Their spirit, determination, and drive has led them to many rewarding meets. A lot of people think that the track team is nothing, but we guarantee that their view would be different if they tried it. Girls, Tech is proud of you, so keep up that outstanding work!

Guys Swing Well

What is there to do on a sunny afternoon? Well . . . for these guys, there is plenty!!! They constantly practice their tennis techniques. Each of these guys have a style all their own. To be able to play tennis you have to be graceful and have a lot of coordination. The tennis teams always do well here at Tech, but we are sure that they would do better with more fans watching them. Tennis is a great sport, ask anyone of these guys and they will tell you just that!

Girls Swing with Grace . . .

What is more fun than being out on a tennis court being crazy with a bunch of friends? To these girls, not much!!!! When it comes to getting to work, they can do that too. Mrs. Manka is the coach of the girls tennis team and she enjoys it very much. The girls on the team not only play tennis for the school, but for their enjoyment as well. When you enjoy what you are doing it's all worth while.

Runners Excel(erate) . . .

Our cross-country team is made up of a bunch of crazy Tech students who have a lot of determination, dedication, and skill. Have you ever seen a human being run like a panther? Well . . . if not . . . you should go watch a cross-country meet. This sport is something that you have to work up to, you can't just decide that all of the sudden you want to do it. # Rebuilding Season

Wrestlers Wrestle with Esteem

Both Varsity and Reserve wrestling teams have reason to be proud. For many years some of the best wrestlers have been from Tech. Judging from some of the meets, there are a lot of good ones still here. Wrestling is one of the toughest sports around and it takes some tough guys to be able to do it. Many hours of practice go into wrestling, but many times it pays off with awards and trophies. These guys work hard to achieve their full potential and to keep Tech's wrestling team ranked high.

"And the meet has started . . ."

A "Fresh" New Start . . .

The freshman wrestling team is made up of a bunch of unique individuals who are looking toward the future on the varsity or reserve wrestling team. Like the upper teams, this team has a lot of determination to do very well at their meets. With extensive practice, these guys can go far.

(The yearbook staff would like to apologize for the lack of pictures. This is due to exposed or bad film.)

Tech Flippers!

This year's diving team dominated other city teams. Their record was outstanding. With a 18-4 record they swept the City Tourney 1,2. Divers Billy Haak and Gene'o Geist gave the swim team the extra points they needed to win some close meets. Their only defeats were from Decatur Central, Lawrence Central, Hamilton Southeastern, and Speedway. The divers did a fine job in the North Central Sectionals with an 8th place finish by Billy Haak and a 10th place for Gene'o Geist. Both divers will be graduating this year, and Tech is in dire need of some fresh new talent, so come on out!

Ralo Flies to the Rescue

This year's boys' swim team was a deprived team compared to past teams. This team's record was just what they did not want; a 7-10 record was all the team could manage to squeeze out, even though they did try their hardest.

With the return of Coach John Hall, who coached at Decatur H.S. last year, the team was worked fairly hard. Two of this year's best meets were against Marshall and Chatard.

Tech won second place in the city meet, which was held at Tech. The winning team was Chatard, who beat Tech by a slim number of points.

The team may have to start recruiting earlier than usual to have a big team next year, eight of this year's memberes are seniors, Bill Lee, Joe Coleman, Bill Haak, Gene'o Geist, David Hon, David Menard, Jeff Fayettee, and Alan Nelson.

Congratulations to this year's team, and good luck to all the remaining swimmers for next year.

Hoopers Dribble

The varsity and reserve basketball teams finished with the coaches commenting that the teams both had very good potential and lots of talent. The teams both had many outstanding advantages, such as a strong defense which forced many errors on opposing players. They also moved the ball quickly and did the fast break as much as possible. The teams had quick over-all speed and had many good rebounds. Although the season for both teams was not the best, we can congratulate them for not giving up. When the opposing team is tough, the Titans keep going.

Freshmans Shoot with Style

Our youngest basketball team here at Tech is coached by Mr. Dave George, who is also a teacher of business. This freshman team has a lot of spirit and pride. These team members hope to make it to varsity or reserve which is an exciting challenge. To see the boys on the floor against another team is a real enjoyment. The guys have something to really be proud of. Good-luck!

Spikers Spike Sportingly . . .

Although Tech's volleyball team had a losing season, they really worked and played hard. The season was a tough one, but they pulled through with the most spirit and pride a team could have. The girls practiced many times each week during their season. Team members say that Mrs. Manka is one of the best coaches around. She works them hard, but only to show them what it is really like to be on a team. With a coach and team members as enthusiastic as ours, it's a wonder we didn't win more games.

Girl Hoopers Do Well

The girls varsity basketball team had a season that was much expected this year. Although the season was good, there were many disappointments. The girls did not fair well in the city tourney and sectionals.

The season record was 10-7, and they were led by Glenna Massey with a 13.6 ave. The team was so well balanced every member of the varsity team lettered.

The reserve girls came off of a winning season (10-6). They met with their toughest competition against attacks.

Their scoring attack was led by freshman Marveda Tardy.

Hopefully next year the Titans can together form the right combination for a state champion team.

Cannon Alumni

A Unique Group

The Alumna Association of the Arsenal Cannon is a unique organization. It is comprised of people who worked on our publications when they were in high school. Now about 800 strong, this association supports the publications in various ways. First, and most important, they offer a scholarship every spring to an outstanding senior staffer. Letter sweaters are also given to staffers with high grade point averages and five semesters of service. The alumni also supply us with equipment of various kinds when we need it. Our hats are off to the Cannon Alumni.

During the four years at Tech I met several new friends and made great personal gains. Upon coming here, I was scared of the stories that I had heard about the teachers and numerous riots, but after the first year, I learned the rumors to be false.

Tech is a great learning institution. Many opportunities are at your finger tips, if you will just reach out. You can not sit still and expect popularity and academic excellence to come to you; you have to go for it. Tech High is only what you make it. If you want it to be a battle field it will be, and if you want it to be a fun place, it can be that too.

Don't sit back and be one of the uncounted few, stand up and let your voice be heard.

While working on the Arsenal Cannon of 1983, I met several difficulties; lack of pictures, and unreliable staff members. But when it came down to book or no book, those staff members who were truly dedicated came in on weekends, over Christmas break, and after school, and we got the book done. My thanks to those staff members; you know who you are.

To the students of Tech, goodbye and I hope you like the book . . .

Thanks,

George England, 1983 Cannon
